The Coordinated School Health Model

"Schools cannot solve everything, but they do have a role in shaping education, and the current and future health of America's children and SHACs help define this role."

- Sylvia Byrd, Executive Director of School Health Services Florida Department of Health (2005)

This website was designed to provide an interactive training to help you renew, refresh and reinvigorate your team's efforts to improve the health and wellness of students and staff in your district. The training provides district Wellness Committees and School Health Advisory Committees (SHACs) with knowledge to create a solid foundation to implement the Coordinated School Health (CSH) approach and enhance their wellness efforts.

Over the years we have gathered profiles from the awarded Healthy School Districts, success stories, and valuable resources. We welcome you to participate in the training and encourage you to conduct the Healthy District Self-Assessment to celebrate success and identify opportunities to grow your efforts.
